Good practices

- In addition to class observations between faculty members, the President also make class observations in person, and the university is enthusiastically pursuing initiatives for professional development. These initiatives are worthy of evaluation.
- The details of the duties and expected roles of outside directors are clearly specified. This initiative is worthy of evaluation.
- Guidelines on the implementation of PDCA for internal quality assurance have been formulated, and self-inspection and evaluation are conducted in an environment using data visualization based on PDCA activities reports of the University Strategy Council, Faculty Council and each committee, taking as their basis the data of the IR Promotion Committee. These initiatives show the efficient functioning of the PDCA cycle and are worthy of high evaluation.
