Good practices

- Faced with declining common space capacity due to increasing numbers of students, the university is systematically acquiring land and pursuing its stage-by-stage development, started work on the renewal of the Library including a Learning Commons and academic skills lab facilities, and is diligently working on the development of the learning environment. These initiatives are worthy of evaluation.
- The university has set 12 attainment targets from its diploma policy, and has introduced a Learning Portfolio system in which radar charts show the students' attainment levels calculated and accumulated based on their course grades, and obtained by self-evaluation. These initiatives are worthy of evaluation as attempts to assess learning outcomes.
