Good practices

- The university formulates in detail its Future Vision and Mid-term Management Policies, and compiles these into a pamphlet as its Mid-term Activities Plan. The university is thorough in notifying the entire faculty and staff of this, and diligent in realizing its mission and goals. This initiative is worthy of evaluation.
- The Students Society activities conducted on a voluntary basis by students represent an opportunity for those studying at this correspondence education-only junior college to maintain mutual links, and these activities provide a mechanism enabling the creation of both tangible and intangible assets for the students. This initiative is worthy of evaluation.
- The Study Guide is well illustrated and features many photos of the iNetCampus screens, making it easily understood by new entrants. The educational staff duties manual is also well arranged and produced in a manner easily understood by newly appointed faculty members. These initiatives are worthy of evaluation.
- In the classroom instruction a course manager is posted for each class held by several faculty members, and coordinates class content as well as renewing teaching material. The state of learning of students is mutually shared among faculty members. This initiative is worthy of evaluation.
