Good practices

- The Faculty of Economics' international student support system and the Faculty of Rehabilitation's orientation conductor system in which content is implemented from the viewpoint of students provide excellent support for students to enjoy a rewarding university life. These initiatives are worthy of high evaluation.
- Students who wish to become public servants and have especially outstanding grades are proactively provided with job placement support through incentives to acquire qualifications in the form of double school tuition assistance. This initiative is worthy of high evaluation.
- The Friendship Membership system enables members of the local community to use the university library and attend general lectures and is contributing to the promotion of community exchange. This initiative is worthy of evaluation.
- Established with the intent of nurturing promising human resources for the field of economics and business, practical classes taught by professional faculty are being utilized to advantage in job placement activities in conjunction with PBL (Project Based Learning) courses and internships. These initiatives are worthy of evaluation.

Recommendations for improvement

- With regard to the Department of Economics and Management of Faculty of Economics, the total capacity fill rate was more than 130%. Accordingly, improvements are required.
- With regard to the "matters to be stipulated by the President as important points regarding education and learning in which it is essential to seek the opinions of the Faculty Council” as prescribed under the University Regulations, University-wide Faculty Council Regulations, and Faculty Council Regulations of each faculty, the President is not stipulating matters and notifying them to the Faculty Council in advance. Accordingly, improvements are required.
