Good practices

- By improving initiatives supporting students' job-hunting activities in collaboration with local small and medium businesses such as the Fukui Prefecture Internship System, Small and Medium Business Workplace Visit Bus Tour, and Industry Research Seminars, the university is contributing to the high local employment rate focusing on employment within Fukui Prefecture. These initiatives are worthy of evaluation.
- The entire university proactively endeavors to obtain external funding, and some positive results have been achieved with regard to contracted research, joint research, and scholarship donations, such as the university consistently receiving grants from the local government, private enterprises, and other organizations every academic year. These initiatives are worthy of evaluation.
- As a mechanism for hearing opinions from third parties, the university has organized an Advisory Council comprising persons involved with higher education institutions, university advisers, directors, local government representatives, and others, as well as an External Evaluation Subcommittee for hearing opinions from the standpoint of specialists in university operations, which was established in this academic year. Through these initiatives, the university is establishing mechanisms for enhancing the functionality of internal quality assurance. These initiatives are worthy of evaluation.
