Good practices

- The university conducts surveys with regard to the state of use of the office hour system, has developed a mechanism for putting to use the results in future design, and is achieving a certain level of results. This initiative is worthy of evaluation.
- Based on the employment situation of students who have already graduated and never worked as full-time employees, the university plans and implements events to prevent them from quickly resigning from their jobs. This initiative is worthy of evaluation.
- The state of the activities of the FD (faculty development) Committee is notified to students, and the initiative enabling students to participate in the committee meetings, and voice their own wishes and opinions is worthy of evaluation.
- With regard to crisis management, a setup enabling action to be taken at any time has been developed, and due to the advanced degree of crisis management awareness among the faculty and staff, the users of welfare facilities in the vicinity of the university were able to be accepted in the case of an actual emergency, and community contribution activities were carried out. These initiatives are worthy of high evaluation.
