Good practices

- The ULTRA FACTORY has been established to provide wide assistance for students' creative activities. It is staffed permanently by professional technicians who support these activities, and it operates with safety in mind through a licensing system. These initiatives are worthy of high evaluation.
- The Graduate School Honor Students System, Hasegawa Memorial Scholarship, and Graduate School Research, Creation, and Presentation Assistance System have been established in the Graduate School of Arts Studies as scholarship systems unique to the university, and students are afforded generous assistance. These initiatives are worthy of high evaluation.
- The library is open on all days when classes are held for regular courses and the correspondence education program including Sundays and public holidays. This initiative is worthy of high evaluation.
- With the objective of inspecting and evaluating the learning outcomes in each department, external evaluations of the curriculum are implemented based on the Self-Inspection and Evaluation Handbook created by each department. This evaluation is worthy of high evaluation.
- During the university's Faculty Development (FD) training, students who are recommended by faculty or who apply to participate are appointed as Student FD members. These members take part in Teaching Kaizen (Improvement) Training, which focuses on utilizing specific recommendations from students to drive meaningful improvements. This initiative is worthy of evaluation.
