Good practices

- As a part of the learning and class instruction support the university has created and distributed to students the Learning Guidance Book, and the Schooling Support Book for Student Assistance (For Faculty and Staff), which shows how to deal with students requiring special consideration, and has constructed a support system in which faculty can smoothly provide students with education. These initiatives are worthy of evaluation.
- The IR Office functions adequately, compiles the data and results of analyses of education and research information, student support and social contribution activity into a Fact Book, implements training workshops, and these efforts are used in improving education and research and student solicitation activities. These initiatives are worthy of high evaluation.

Recommendations for improvement

- Neither the Faculty Council of the Graduate School of Education nor the Faculty Council of the Graduate School of Practitioners in Education stipulates the important matters regarding education and research which the President separately stipulates as matters requiring hearing the opinion of the Faculty Council, nor do they make the matters public. Accordingly, improvements are required.
